To Whom It May Concern,

Our fifth-grade students and teachers at the George L. Catrambone School have taken on the role of Biodiversity experts. Last year they created pollinator gardens after learning that GLC is on the direct route monarch butterflies follow while migrating south for warmer climates. Knowing this, they created a safe space for them and pollinators like them to feed, rest, and have their needs met.

During this school year they have become investigators completing a biodiversity audit to assess the area and increase the biodiversity of our school grounds. We fully support them on this journey and pledge to find or acquire the necessary materials needed to complete their ongoing project. While many of the supplies have been donated, we understand that there may be additional costs in the future for needed supplies. We have a fundraising account to support these needs when donations are not available.

Thank you,
